Rudolph The Red Nosed Reindeer

Probably, you know about Santa Claus and his flying sleigh steered by reindeers. Especially Rudolph with his red nose and giant antler is a famous part of many Christmas tales. But, actually, male reindeers already lose their antlers in autumn; only females keep them until the winter months to come. Thus, if you have ever baked cookies in the shape of Rudolph and you were failing to protect his delicate crowns from breaking, don't worry – they are not supposed to be there anyway.
